

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A flying object includes a lift and displacement motor which has a combustible propelling charge and direct thrust flight control and can ensure the lift and displacement of the flying object in an observation position for which the flying object is at least approximately vertical with the rear part thereof oriented downwards; an attitude motor with a combustible propelling charge and conventional thrust vector control; and an observation unit which is arranged in the rear part of the flying object.

DC 73070-6116 130823v1